Fortuna Energy Inc. may be new to Pennsylvania, but we are already the most successful natural gas exploration and production company in New York. In fact in 2005, fifty of Fortuna's deep wells produced 74% of the natural gas originating in that state. Every productive well we drill helps reduce America's dependence on foreign energy and contributes to local job and economic growth.

Land

Leasing oil and gas rights is the first phase of exploration. Fortuna has leased more than 100,000 acres in Pennsylvania, in addition to 850,000 acres under lease in New York. We are constantly expanding this base as we follow geologic trends into nearby areas. Active Pennsylvania leasing areas include Bradford and Tioga counties in the Northern Tier and the Tri-State area of Southwest Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

Fortuna may lease your oil and gas rights to explore for gas, drill wells and develop successful discoveries. In Pennsylvania, the owners of oil and gas rights on land above the actual path of a well share royalties based on the proceeds from that well. If a successful well is drilled on land for which you leased the oil and gas rights, you will be paid royalties according to the terms of your lease.

Regulatory Oversight

The Pennsylvania State Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is chartered to oversee the orderly development of the state's natural resources. Specific state legislation establishes the rules that govern oil and gas development for both operating companies and landowners. All new wells must be permitted by the DEP.

Fortuna Energy's environmental record and safe operating practices meet or exceed all government requirements.
